Danette Gossett

Greetings!

We are approaching Memorial Day and the start of summer. Many of us have already experienced summer-like temperatures. And as I speak with friends and colleagues many are wistfully waiting for their turn to go on vacation.

Summer is also the time of year that because of the vacations, many companies slow down. Now, I haven't seen any evidence of this slowdown so far, but maybe it will for some. No matter, it is the time to start planning for your fall events.

I know you are tired of hearing it, but it needs repeating; inventory is not what it used to be. Sure, we have some factory suppliers that have stocked up on their most popular items. However, production times are increasing again. Most factories have suspended many if not all rush services.

In other words, plan ahead. While many think of us as miracle workers, my miracles are running a bit thin right now. Just this week I had two orders that almost missed their events. Not because they didn't ship on time, but UPS and FedEx are also running behind. They no longer guarantee a delivery date.

We are here to help with that summer corporate picnic and appreciation gifts or your upcoming fall trade show series. Let's get to work on it now so you don't have to settle for something or do without
